THE STORY

Jane Morgan, living with her aunt, Mrs. Williams, does not want to marry the family lawyer, Richard Van Loytor, a man old enough to be her father. She therefore takes her old maid, Murray, as a chaperone and leaves home to make a career for herself.

She finds it hard to get work and after considering her accomplishments realizes that she has never done anything very well except to win other girls' sweethearts away from them; she's a born match-breaker.

She inserts an ad in the papers offering her services; agreeing to head off any misalliance in a family--to break off any match that should be broken.

A young broker, Thomas Butler, Junior, is worried about his father being snared by a dashing widow, Madge Lariane. Butler, senior, is in Coronado in the widow's coils.

Thomas, Jr., meets the "Match Breaker" at lunch and hires her to go to Coronado and break off the match between the widow and his father. While at lunch a detective that old Butler has set upon his son sees Tom Jr., give Jane a check and wires Thomas, Sr., that his son is being lured by a dashing young woman. After receiving this telegram, Thomas Sr., sends the "Match Breaker" a ticket to come to Coronado and interview him with the idea of saving his son from the siren with whom the detective saw him.

At Coronado, the old man is being thoroughly vamped by the widow when Jane arrives. The old man tells Jane about his son taking lunch with a woman and shows her the telegram from his detective. She realizes that she, herself, is the woman whose match with the son is to be broken, but takes the job and a retaining fee.

Tom, Jr., wires that he cannot stay away and is already headed for Coronado. The detective follows him down and tells Thomas, Sr., that the "Match Breaker" is the woman in question.

This incenses old Butler; he feels that she is grafting on him and he denounces her before Tom, Jr., who is much in love with her.

Meanwhile, the widow has made a deal with her confederate, De Long, that she will be on the old man's yacht with him and that De Long is to pretend to be an indignant brother and make old Butler pay for silence.

Jane finds this out and tries to save old man Butler but De Long binds her and sets her adrift in a row boat. Young Tom rescues her in time for them to reach the yacht and frustrate the widow's blackmailing scheme.

Tom, Jr., and Jane agree that their match will never be broken and the "Match Breaker" thus becomes the bride of her first client.
